

Relaxed Hollywood Glamour in Sherman Oaks, California

This Sherman Oaks, CA home was the first in the states completed by British Columbia-based design firm Meade Design Group. The client, a single woman with grown children, was considering her California bungalow for the first time as a pure reflection of her own needs and style, which designer Echo Eaton-Thorne defines as elegant, feminine, mature and distinctive.

The dining room, centered by a round dining table and a sparkling light fixture, features a sideboard flanked by custom upholstered camel back chairs that pair with the Chinese Chippendale-style dining chairs. The fabric brings femininity and interest with a pop of color in the lumbar pillows, and a metallic shag rug connects all the pieces and grounds the room.

The living room is adorned with leather ottomans, custom armchairs and bookshelves, and weathered leather trunks as end tables, all of which embrace the character of the home. Ceramic stools between the chairs, a chrome bar cart at the bay window and two custom-upholstered stools ensure extra seating and mobile cocktailing for movie nights with friends. Custom framed movie posters and an antique projector highlight the client's film industry career. The fabrics and wallpaper create the visual interest, combinations of taupes, creams, mauves, eggplant and charcoal combine to create a cozy yet relaxed atmosphere.

Warm woods and textural fabrics in the bedroom create a calming, warm and inviting space in shades of purple. Metallic wallpaper in soft taupe, amethyst velvet drapes with triple welt detail, the upholstered bed and the artwork all work together in the perfect blend of beauty and function. A feminine light fixture hangs above it all to cast a warm glow and pull it all together.
